

Join the Partnership for Creative Learning

Too many kids miss the opportunity to learn the creative process as part of their education because of ever-growing barriers like limited instructional time or re-allocation of funding due to severe budget cuts. But teaching and engaging youth in the arts is more than just a nicety; it is a necessity that positions kids for success in school and in life. Arts programs make youth more innovative, creative, and better critical thinkers – vitally important skills that each child needs and deserves. School districts, local, state and federal governments need to be held accountable for providing instruction in the arts to every child in our school system.

You can make a difference by joining the Partnership for Creative Learning today! We are a local action group made up of individuals and organizations united to build support for educational excellence that includes the arts, with the ultimate goal of developing imagination, sparking critical thinking, and empowering expression for every student.

While we cannot predict policy outcomes, together our chorus of voices shows the leadership and public will behind preserving and expanding arts education funding and encouraging best practices in arts education.

Membership is free and as part of the Partnership for Creative Learning you will:

- Have a profound impact as we advocate to ensure that the creative process is a core part of every child's education;
- Join in a shared advocacy approach that will change the way that arts education is funded and managed in the Bay Area;
- Be a stronger advocacy force than you could be on your own.

You can multiply your impact by activating your own networks in support of the goals of the Partnership for Creative Learning and helping to coordinate the coalition's efforts.

Join the Partnership for Creative Learning and become part of a broad coalition of teachers, youth groups, arts providers and many more who understand the vital role the arts play in our children's education.
