STATEMENT IN DEFENSE OF BLACK LIVES

In June 2020, as the movement in defense of Black lives experienced a sea change in the aftermath of the police murder of George Floyd, the Workshop recommitted to supporting and uplifting Black lives through our work every day. The Anti-Racism Committee, composed of members of Performing Arts Workshop's teaching and program staff, released a powerful Statement in Defense of Black Lives, laying out our organization's specific commitments as an employer, an educational resource, and a community leader in the Bay Area. We encourage all to read this statement, hold us accountable to our commitments, and seek to make commitments in your own lives to dismantle white supremacy when and where you can.

ED CHANGE

In January, Emily Garvie left her position as the Executive Director of Performing Arts Workshop after four years in the role. Under her leadership, the Workshop underwent many major changes, including the Workshop's selection as Program Partner for the Geneva

Powerhouse in 2017 and the acquisition of Streetside Stories in 2018. With Emily's departure, the Workshop welcomed Neela Benjamin Gentile as our Interim Executive Director and launched the search for a new permanent Executive Director.

PURSuing ART IN TUMULTUOUS TIMES

In March, the spread of COVID to the US forced the closure of in-person classes. With the disproportionate impact of this public health crisis in the communities in which we work, we knew that it was especially important for us to be leaders in following the best practices laid out by public health experts. But we also knew that this disruptive and traumatic event could cause discomfort, confusion, and anxiety for the children with whom we work. So, in April 2020, we launched individualised Distance Learning programs for all of our existing site partners, bringing arts education back into the (virtual) classroom. In a time when the arts can help us process and heal, this programming guides us in our mission to reach students who have fewer access points to arts education.

MOVING INTO THE POWERHOUSE

Construction and renovations continued through much of 2019-2020, but in August 2020 we received news that the Powerhouse renovations were complete! Although the pandemic prevented us from immediately starting youth arts classes in the building, we have nonetheless found creative and safe ways to use the Powerhouse to advance our mission of providing equitable arts education to Bay Area children, including launching our innovative Reimagine Distance Learning program.
